A DISHONEST PORTER.

John McIntire's Experience With a Fifty Dollar Bill.

John McIntire, a snow-bound sleeping-car passenger was out last night until quite late, and on going to bed in his berth on the sleeper he slept soundly until this morning, when he awoke and looked for his trousers. He could not find them until he drifted around to berth 11—he occupied 14—when he picked them up, but minus a $50 greenback that he was certain he left in them. McIntire immediately called Rodgers, the porter, and accused him of the theft, and had the darkey arrested. The officer traced the matter up and found that at about 1 o'clock last night the "nig" had got a $50 bill changed at the Arcade, and when asked to explain how he came by so much money and what he had done with it finally acknowledged that he took it from McIntire's trousers, and had already sent $37 of it to his family in Chicago. He made the loss good, and at the same time avoiding to detain the passengers here to appear as witnesses before the Grand Jury the officer thought it best to let the colored gentleman go.

His services on the sleepers should be of short durations, however, unless the sleeping-car company is in with him.

MISERY LIKES COMPANY.

An Amusing Incident that Illustrates Human Nature.

Louis Dean tells an amusing incident illustrative of human nature that recently occurred not a thousand miles from Reno. It seems there are two Irish neighbors by the the names of Cavanaugh and Muldoon, and Cavanaugh's cattle were dying by the wholesale, which caused him to be very dejected and down hearted, and his wife was nearly distracted at their luck. The other morning Cavanaugh went over to visit his neighbor Muldoon, and on his return home he went to his house, his face beaming in smiles, and straightening up fully six inches taller than he was and sticking his belly out into the room where his wife was, he exclaimed: "Och, Mrs. Cavanaugh, Oi've some good news for ye's this marnin'." "What is it, Pat?" inquired his wife. "Be gorra, mum, Muldoon's cattle are dying as well as ours," said Cavanaugh with a merry chuckle.

THE TRAINS.

Another Storm in the Mountains and the Rotary Plow Disabled.

The news from the snow-bound trains this morning was not of the most encouraging nature. It was blowing and snowing in the mountains and the rotary plow was stuck in the snow, which would seem to justify the conclusion that no trains will be through for a day or two yet.

No. 4 from the east, that should have arrived last evening, is about 20 hours behind time.

SHADY RUN, Jan. 22.—One hundred and fifty snow shovelers, who were snowed in, were relieved to-day by nearly the same number of men who carried grub to them on snowshoes.

It was storming at Cisco this forenoon and the snow was drifting badly.

A snowplow, pushed by four engines, came down from Truckee to-day at noon, but the crew would give no definite information as to when the trains would get through, but gave it as their opinion that they would make it some time to-morrow.

RAILROAD BLOCKADE.

Death of a Noted Ohio Attorney.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Action in the West Virginia Election Case.

The Bank of England Not Buying Silver Bullion.

Congressional Affairs.
By Associated Press.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The Sub-Committee of the Special House Committee on the World's Fair was called together this morning by Chairman Chandler, and they discussed the Springer proposition to select a site for the World's Fair by ballot in the House to-morrow. The session did not last more than a half hour, as it was evident that the Sub-Committee was hopelessly divided upon the proposition, and it will report to the full committee to-morrow that it has had the proposition under consideration and has come to no conclusion thereon.

The Oklahoma townsite bill was somewhat amended and reported to the House and passed.

Mr. Mason of Illinois introduced a bill to forfeit certain land grants to aid in the construction of railroads.

Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio, from the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, reported back the Senate joint resolution appropriating $1,250,000 for the removal of snags and other obstructions from the Missouri river between St. Joseph and its mouth. The committee proposed a substitute, reducing the appropriation to $550,000 and appropriating $75,000 for the removal of snags from the Columbia river, Oregon. On motion of Mr. Herman of Oregon, the substitute was amended so that the appropriation for the Columbia river may be expended sor continuing the jetty work. The substitute was agreed to and the joint resolution was amended and passed.

SENATE.

Mr. Chandler offered a concurrent resolution, which went over till to-morrow, authorizing the committees on Immigration in the two Houses to investigate the working of the various laws of the United States, and of the several States, in regard to immigration from foreign countries.

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill discussed yesterday, to require the Superintendent of the Census to ascertain what percentage of the people own their farms, the number of farms under mortgage and the amount thereof.

A Silver Report Denied.
By Cable and Associated Press.]

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Nothing has been published here in regard to the report that the Bank of England has recently been a heavy purchaser of silver bullion and was contemplating the issue of pound notes, redeemable in silver as soon as the necessary authority could be obtained. Careful inquiries in financial circles this morning resulted in the showing that a few had heard the report, and they were incredulous as to its accuracy. The chief financial authorities expressed the opinion that the report was wholly without foundation, in fact they asserted positively that the Bank of England had made no such purchase of bullion, and was not buying silver now. Further than this they declared that the purchase of silver was not being made by any London bank. With reference to the alleged intention of the Bank of England to issue pound notes, attention was drawn to the fact that neither the Bank of England nor any other bank in England could issue pound notes without special authority to that end by an Act of Parliament. It was considered doubtful whether so conservative an institution as the Bank of England would be making preparations for so radical a change. Silver bullion is ⅛ of a penny lower per ounce to-day. The Bank of England's rate of discount continues at six per cent., as for some time past.

The California & Oregon Blockade.
Special to the GAZETTE.]

SIMS, Cal., Jan. 22.—There is smaller hope than ever this morning as to the trains getting out. The passengers are well provided for yet, but supplies will have to come in a few days, as there are over 300 people here to feed. Snow began falling in the night at the rate of 1½ inches an hour and still continues. Trains from San Francisco with fuel and provisions have not arrived yet.

A Contested Case.
By Associated Press.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—By a strict party vote the House Committee on Elections to-day decided to report in favor of unseating Jackson (Dem.), a Representative from West Virginia, and declaring Smith (Rep.), the contestant, entitled to the seat. This is the first of seventeen contested election cases which the committee has disposed of, and it was the first one upon which argument was heard.

THE STOCK LOSSES.

A Talk With N. H. A. Mason On the Outlook — Rather a Hopeful View Expressed.

N. H. A. Mason, who has just returned from the Eastern part of the State, reports that cattle in the White Horse country, 150 miles north of Winnemucca, were doing well when he left there on the 29th of December. There was only about six inches of snow. He estimates that the loss will be about 25 per cent. throughout the State where stockmen have feed to carry them through and much larger on range cattle that cannot be got to hay. He says much depends upon the weather—that if the snow goes off within the next twenty days there will be a good many pull through that would otherwise come up missing at the spring round-up, and that if the snow lays on much longer than twenty days that the loss will be very heavy. Mr. Mason is feeding about 11,000 head at Melheur, and in the White Horse country belonging to the P. L. S. Co.'s ranges. Then he is feeding 3,000 head on his Quinn river ranch, and the balance are in the brush rustling. Mr. Mason is one of the best posted men in the business, and his judgment is probably better than that of most any other man.

BREVITIES.

The mercury dropped to 4° below zero last night.

It is storming and blowing in the mountains again.

All cases in the District Court have been vacated for this week.

The Virginia Chronicle records seven feet of snow at that place.

Russell & Bradley are shipping hay from Reno to Elko to feed their stock at that point.

In some of the canyons west of Carson the snow is said to be drifted to a depth of fifty feet.

Owing to non-attendance, caused by sickness and bad weather, the Carson schools have been temporarily closed.

The snow-bound passengers here are making the best of the situation and enjoying themselves in their own way, card-playing, sleigh-riding, etc.

D. C. Wheeler has five bands of sheep near Mud Lake. He heard indirectly that two bands were all right so far, but the others he has not heard from.

Cattle on the Smoke Creek desert are reported as standing the storm first rate. There are only about eight or ten inches of snow and the stock are strong.

Owing to the absence of Attorney-General Alexander and the non-arrival of important witnesses and papers, the Board of Pardons has adjourned until Monday, February 3d.

The signal service station predicts the worst storm of the season on the 24th. The barometer is down, and from the fact that the storm has reached the Sierras, it is more than likely that it will come.

Waked Up Effectually.

A lethargic, dormant condition of the liver is hardly to be overcome with drastic cathartics and nauseous cholagogues. A gentler, pleasanter and far more effective means exists of arousing the organ when somnolent. This is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, vouched for by the medical faternity, tested by the public for many years. A resumption by the biliary organs of its secretive function, with the activity attendant upon health, a return to regularity of the bowels, and a renewal of digestion, are the no less happy and certain results of using the Bitters systematically. Its laxative effect is never painful and drenching, its tendency being rather to perpetuate regularity than to produce a copious action. Malaria, nervousness, debility, kidney troubles and neuralgia it subdues effectually.

Death of a Prominent Citizen of Michigan.

Major Powell's Views.
By Associated Press.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The Senate Select Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation of Arid Lands held a session last evening. Major Powell, Director of the U. S. Geological Survey, explained, by aid of maps, the drainage areas of the arid region, artesian well districts and localities, and at some length elucidated his views on local irrigation districts in connection with the drainage areas of those regions. The Major read to the committee a bill, drafted by him, which provided for topographic and hydrographic surveys of the arid region and for the segregation of the same into irrigable, pastural and timber lands, the two latter to remain the property of the United States for the use of the people for the irrigation districts. The bill provides for federal control over inter-State waters, and the formation of water districts under the control of the States and Territories.

Fatal Gas Explosion.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 22.—There was an explosion of natural gas this morning which completely wrecked a three-story dwelling. John Slip, aged 38 years, was killed, Mrs. Theo. Ringer, aged 35 years, was badly crushed and burned, and will die; Mrs. Annie Slip was very seriously injured, and six others were wounded, some seriously. The explosion was caused by a leak in a cellar. Mrs. Ringer started down into the cellar with a lighted candle and before she reached the foot of the stairs the gas ignited and a terrible explosion followed, which shook all the buildings in the vicinity. The house was lifted from its foundation and blown to pieces. At the time there were ten persons in the building, and all but an infant were more or less injured.

Three Chapters that Contain a Sequel.

There are three chapters in the "Family Physician" which are worthy of special mention, namely, those on "Diseases of Women," "Diseases of Infants" and "Care of the sick."

The first of these is a model of its kind. It is chaste in language, contains no disgusting pictures for children to happen on and be over-curious about, and taken altogether is the most practical, sensible and straight-forward treatise upon this delicate subject that has ever been printed.

This chapter alone is worth many times the cost of the book to every mother even if it had to be purchased at its regular price.

The other chapters referred to are equally well written and valuable. See "Our Plan" on 4th page.

5 O'CLOCK EDITION.

Cold Comfort.

It is cold comfort to the stockman to say that what stock he has left after Spring opens will be worth as much as his whole band were in the fall. After working years under discouraging circumstances accumulating a herd of stock or a band of sheep, to have them swept away by the cold, snowy blasts of winter is calculated to make him feel that fate was against every endeavor to make an honest living. The low price of cattle for the past few years has made it almost impossible for livestock growers to keep even, to say nothing about a profit, and, after struggling against the odds for so long, it seems truly like hard luck for the elements to take him in hand and wipe from the face of the earth what he was fondly clinging to for his reward for years of uncomplaining toil. Still, "Live and learn" is an old adage, and would seem to apply in the present case. The day has passed when stockmen can run large bands of stock without making provision for their sustenance in times like these, and we are more firmly convinced now than ever before that the farmer with a small tract of land, properly cultivated, and with such stock as the place will carry and keep in good condition will make more money in the long run than the man who tries to do too much. The soil will yield up its hidden riches more bountifully if properly cultivated and one acre will support more cattle or sheep than ten will as now farmed by the great majority. When an individual or firm attempt to "farm" the whole universe and have cattle scattered over four or five big counties, they must expect leaks that it is impossible to stop, for it is an utter impossibility for them to give personal attention to all their vast holdings, and every few years bring a winter like the present, in which they are likely to lose all they have made in former years. while the small farmer can turn off his stock yearly and live within himself and lay up money annually. If the large cattlemen throughout the State would cut up their places into small tracts, invite immigration and sell off their large holdings, we believe they would make more money, live happier and longer and lead a better life in every way than they do at present.

A BLOCKADE like the present one chokes the channels of commerce in every direction and interrupts all branches of business. A railroad is a great thing after all, for it confers upon arteries of trade in every direction, and to have them tied up even for a few days makes confusion and puts many people to great inconvenience. Just now the main channel of commerce is blocked across the continent, and the traffic of the world is more or less obstinated thereby. Still how readily a community adjusts itself to the situation and how good-naturedly the people take to the new order of things. They seem to realize the great battle now going on in the mountains between man and the elements, and are content to wait until skill, ingenuity and labor solves the problem and comes out the victor.

THE GAZETTE acknowledges the receipt of a beautiful copy of a "Birdseye" View of Washington, including the proposed site of the World's Exposition of 1892 and the permanent Exposition of the three Americans.

LARGE MERCHANT SPIP.

Of Greater Capacity than the Tokio or the City of Peking.

A Philadelphia dispatch of the 16th inst says: C. P. Huntington, President of the Pacific Improvement Company, has given to Cramp & Sons the contract to build the largest merchant steamship ever erected on the Delaware. She will be built for the Morgan steamship service between New Orleans and New York, and will be 400 feet long, 48 feet beam and 33 feet depth of hold, and will register 4,500 tons gross. She will be an exclusive freight boat, and will have triple expansion engines, steel boilers, steam steering-gear and will draw only 24 feet of water. Her carrying capacity will be larger than the Pacific Mail steamships City of Peking and City of Tokio, built by the John Roach Company. Although not quite as long, she will have more beam and depth of hold than these vessels.

AN INTERESTING LETTER.

An Unbroken Blanket of Snow from Auburn, Cal., to Chicago.

The following letter from R. L. Fulton was received at this office yesterday:

We are fifty miles from Chicago and there is an unbroken blanket of snow from Auburn, Cal., to this place, and I presume to the Atlantic shore. We saw any quantity of cattle in Wyoming and Western Nebraska, all poor and each with an overcoat of new snow on its bony back. The loss promises to be very heavy.

E. M. Gibson of Clarks, Nebraska, has thirty thousand tons of hay bought at from $1 to $2 50 a ton, several hundred thousand bushels of corn and oats at thirteen cents a bushel, and he only has stock enough for part of it. He offers two and a half cents for steers one, two or three years old, fat or lean, delivered. He thinks freight would be about $7 a head. I telegraphed Bradley & Russell, but got no answer. If you know of any one with any they can reach better, tell them to write him. He says he wouldn't have cows at any price; not at $4 a head. Everybody is riding hard for stock in Eastern Nevada, but they are not getting many in.

Will be home to-night.

VALUABLE PRESENT.

Every Old as Well as New Subscriber Gets One.

The article the GAZETTE is giving away is no cheap or common place affair, it is something every family ought to have. It is a Medical book for home use.

Weak Women

Owe to themselves a duty to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, in view of the great relief it has given those who suffer from ailments peculiar to the sex. By purifying the blood, regulating important organs, strengthening the nerves, and toning the whole system, it restores the debilitated to health.

After 15 Years.

"For 15 years my mother has been troubled with milk leg. She went to different parts of California, as persons said the climate might help her, but it was of no avail, and I, being a druggist, thought I would get her to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Before she had taken half a bottle she said she was improving, so she continued until she took half a dozen bottles, and now she is perfectly well. For nearly fifteen years she was unable to walk around, but now she can walk as well as ever." T. F. BLAKE, San Francisco, with C. F. Richards & Co., Wholesale Druggists.

Like a New Creature.

"I have been for years trying to get help for that terrible general debility and weakness so common to women. Within a year I have taken ten or twelve bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I am now feeling like a new creature." MRS. F. B. ROSS, Marlin, Texas.

RESTORED HER HEALTH.

For 25 years I suffered from boils, erysipelas and other blood affections, taking during that time great quantities of different medicines without giving me any perceptible relief. Friends induced me to try S. S. S. It improved me from the start, and after taking several bottles, restored my health as far as I could hope for at my age, which is now seventy-five years.

JOTTINGS.

Have you tried that Eastern cream corn meal at Leadbetter's.

Miss Emma Gibbs carries a fall line of the latest styles of corsets, genuine amber hairpins and Fontleroy cuffs and collars.

George Becker's Granite saloon is a pretty comfortable place to spend an occasional half hour during this stinging cold weather.

W. R. Chamberlain of the Riverside Hotel is still confined to the house by sickness, still he is able to look after the comforts of his guests.

Those who have tried the remedy, say that Brookin's home manufactured candies are a sure cure for la grippe or any similar complaint.

No matter how long the blockade lasts, no one will go hungry so long as J. J. Becker sells a square meal and a glass of Pacific beer for 12½ cents.

No better assortment of the best family groceries can be found in the town than is being carried by J. N. Wallace, who is selling at bedrock prices.

During this blockade the Arcade is about as lively a place as was ever seen in the town, for the public seem to like the way Lemery treats his patrons.

The holidays being over, you can purchase of C. A. Thurston, scrap, autograph and photograph albums at reduced prices, as he does not intend to carry the balance of that stock over until next Christmas.

FATAL ACCIDENT

To a Woodchopper Near Lake Tahoe.

The Carson Tribune of the 18th inst. says: On the 4th of January, at one of the wood camps at Bijou, Joe Holding met with an accident while helping to fell a tree, receiving injuries from which death ensued shortly afterwards.

James Vair, in writing to Budd Bliss of the accident, says: "A tree that he was helping to fall turned on the stump while falling and caught him between the butt and a rock, tearing the heel of his boot off and breaking the bone, and I think the tree in the rebound caught the other leg, as it was ripped to the bone almost the entire length. He died about three hours afterwards. As it was impossible to get out of the camp, we buried him in the hills."

Holding has been working for the company for about two years. Nothing is known of him or his relations. Upon his person was found a poll-tax receipt from H. H. Doan, County Assessor of Columbia county, Or.

THE QUESTION SETTLED.

This is a faithful picture of the establishment of Thomas Price & Son, at 524 Sacramento St., S. F. As the leading chemists of the west, they were asked to settle the question as to what sarsaparillas were in fact purely vegetable. We present their report. "We have made careful chemical analyses of several well known brands of sarsaparilla, and have found them all with the single exception of Joy's to contain iodide of potassium. As a result we are enabled to pronounce Joy's to be the only purely vegetable sarsaparilla now on the market, which has come under our observation." Modern medicine has proven that all ordinary face eruptions are caused by indigestion and sluggish circulation, which call for vegetable alteratives, instead of mineral blood purifiers like iodide of potassium. Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla is the first to discard the old notions and proceed under the modern theory. Its cures are the talk of the hour.

Epoch.

The transition from long, lingering and painful sickness to robust health marks an epoch in the life of the individual. Such a remarkable event is treasured in the memory and the agency whereby the good health has been attained is gratefully blessed. Hence it is that so much is heard in praise of Electric Bitters. So many feel they owe their restoration to health to the use of the Great Alterative and Tonic. If you are rubled with any disease of the Kidneys or Liver or Stomach, of long or short standing you will surely find relief by the use of Electric Bitters. Sold at 50c and $1 per bottle at W. Pinniger's drug store.

The Pulpit and the Stage.

Rev. F. M. Shrout, pastor United Brethren Church, Blue Mound, Kansas., says: "I fell it my duty to tell what wonders Dr. King's New D scovery has done for me. My Lungs were badly diseased and my parishioners thought I could live only a few weeks. I took five bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery and am sound and well, gaining 26 pounds in weight."

Arthur Love, Manager Love's Funny Folks Combination, writes: "After a thorough trial and convincing evidence, I am confident Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption beats 'em all, and cures when everything else fails. The greatest kindness I can do my many thousand friends is to use them to try it. Free trial bottles at W. Pinnigers's drug store. Regular sizes 50c and $1.

CARSON NEWS.

An Interesting Letter From the Hub.

The Social Events of the Week Written Up by One of Carson's Four Hundred.

CARSON, Nev., January 20, 1890.

EDITOR GAZETTE: The people who occupied so much of their leisure time last summer and fall praying for rain ought to be much gratified with the result of their efforts, for certainly no country was ever more thoroughly drenched than this has been. During the latter part of November and the first two weeks of December rain fell almost incessantly. Since then snow has fallen with only short intermissions for gathering renewed force and energy with which to descend upon us. It seems that Nature is offering with both hands this golden opportunity for a practical test of the water storage proposition, to the projectors of irrigation schemes. However, to a disinterested observer, the idea occurs that there has been about enough of

SNOW AND RAIN

For all necessary purposes; and, as enough is always as good as a feast, it would be very acceptable service if some of the good people would now intercede with the powers that be, for a cessation of hostilities. From present indications something must be done for our salvation or we are liable to be hopelessly snowed under. "And the next day it snowed," is no longer a joke. It is a cold hard fact that is growing exceedingly monotonous. One thing not asked for, but which came nevertheless, was the "cold wave," as it was called, which passed over, or rather froze to us for several days That was not entirety without satisfaction to us, however, as we got ahead of Reno eight or ten degrees. Twenty-eight degrees below zero beats the record for this part of Nevada, and that is what our early birds had to encounter part of last week. For nearly four weeks vehicles of all kinds have been on runners, and a great many

HANDSOME TURNOUTS

Are daily seen upon our streets. The mystery is where so many come from in a country where their necessity is so rare. There are also all sorts and sizes of improvised sleighs and cutters for actual service, which are perhaps more frequently seen now than the little fancy rigs in which the young men at first skimmed around town and squandered $5 an hour on their best girls. One outfit which has caused no little amusement is that of an old gray horse hitched to a sled, to which is fastened by means of ropes a perfect train of other sleds, each one carrying from two to four red-nosed, happy-faced youngsters, boys and girls. The novelty of it never seems to wear off, and almost any hour after school time the patient old horse is to be seen plodding along with the shouting band behind him. Nothwithstanding the cold and otherwise unpleasant weather, Carson has been very gay this winter. Perhaps the cherry warmth and

COMFORT OF HOMES

Has been more appreciated by contrast. There have been ever so many pleasant parties, and during the holidays wedding bells rang frequently.

On Tuesday night of last week the A. O. U. W. had their regular installation of officers, which was followed by a bounteous supper. Quite a number of invited guests were present and all pronounced it a most successful affair

On Wednesday evening Mrs. George Richards entertained a company of her friends at a progressive eucher. After the prizes, which were unique and pretty, were awarded, dainty refreshments were served and the guests departed, having spent a delightful evening. The

CATHOLIC CHURCH

People gave a party and an elaborate supper on Thursday evening, the proceeds to be used in improving their church. It was largely attended, and the dancing was continued until a late hour.

Our young people are very enthusiastic over a new dancing club that has been organized and appropriately named the Our Night Out Club. Nothing else is talked of. The first party of the series which they propose giving during the winter, is appointed for Friday evening, January 24th. The exact nature of this first affair is enshrouded in mystery. It is a profound secret to the public in general and to the lay members of the club in particular. The Executive Committee held their final meeting and completed arrangements with closed doors. Vows of secrecy were exchanged by the members of the committee, and all questions by the inquisitive are answered with "Wait and see." We are possessing our souls with patience, confident the affair, whatever it proves, will be pleasant, and reasonably sure that there will be dancing. It was at first intended to give a german, but, after much deliberation, that was given up until later—probably just before Lent.

Quite a number of Carson people intended going to Reno to witness the production of "The Princess" by your amateur dramatic company. Every one was talking of it. The irregularity of the trains prevented anyone going over, however, and we wish it might seem wise to the company to bring the play here in the near future. A liberal patronage would be assured. The cause for which they were working is a very worthy one, and it is to be hoped they met with the utmost measure of success. Reno's fine

EDUCATIONAL ADVANTAGES

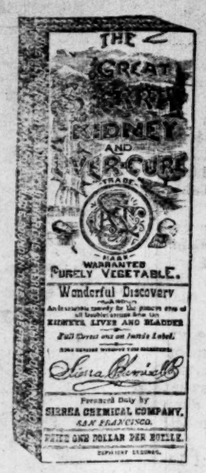

Ought to be supplemented by a first-class public library. Such an institution is a credit to any community, and one that will prove an attraction to people in search of homes.

Carsonites are all interested in the evident signs of prosperity and progress for Reno's future, and think the able auspices, is going to be a splendid thing for us all. It is a head for the broad shoulders and strong body of our State, and we hope soon to see the new man on his feet.

A number of our citizens are suffering with colds, which they choose to dignify by the name of the imported epidemic malady—la grippe.

We have had no mail since Wednesday, and do not expect any for some days to come.

One comfort which comes with this protracted storm is that it is likely to give us an early spring, for which we are all devoutly praying, as we have every reason to expect a boom in real estate and other matters when that season opens. Yours respectfully,

D. D. D.

BREVITIES.

Local and General Intelligence.

There is fully a foot more snow in Carson than in Reno.

Attention is called to the new ad. of the Bank of Nevada in to-day's GAZETTE.

W. R. Chamberlain, who has been quite ill with a cold, is slowly convalescing.

General Irish reports that at 5 o'clock this morning the mercury at his residence just touched zero.

Silver Mountain has been snowed under for over a month, and fears are expressed for the safety of the people.

Four Carson Tribunes were received here last evening, being the first papers received from south of Reno for six days.

On the 17th instant the Carson Tribune, one of the most reliable local papers ever printed in the State, entered upon its 34th volume.

The frost falling about an electric light at night makes a very beautiful picture. The glistening particles present all the colors of the rainbow.

San Francisco butchers will be obliged to hunt close if they find many beef steers in this State next fall, but what they do find will be first-class.

Sheriff Overall of Tulare county, Cal., is in town with a prisoner whom he captured in Wyoming, and who is being taken back to California to be tried for embezzlement.

There are about 300 passengers here awaiting an opportunity of going West. Some of them are out of money and are being fed by the railroad company. It is cold comfort to be broke, snowbound and in a strange land.

There are more people confined to the house with bad colds than ever before in the history of the town. This may be accounted for from the fact that there are more people than ever before. There is hardly a house in town that there is not from one to three laid up.

Old Linen Wanted.

Owing to many recent accidents, the County Hospital is "bank full," and Dr. Hogan informs the GAZETTE that old linen, white cotton or even calico rags (left at Osburn & Shoemaker's) will be greatly appreciated, especially by those unfortunates who are suffering from bruised or broken limbs. Nearly every family in town ought to have something in the above line they can spare.

Carson & Colorado Business.

During the past year, from January 1st to November 30, 1889, there passed over the Carson & Colorado Railroad the following amounts of freight: Merchandise, 622,820 pounds; ore, 3,697,052; borax, 121,022; wool, 35,775; corn, 64,908; marble, 447,280; soda, 1,087,785; live stock, 120,000; grain, 375,699; hay, 90,980; scrap iron, 20,000 pounds.

A Plenty of Ice.

The Virginia Chronicle says the Water Company is putting up its second crop of ice from its Ophir Grade reservoir and that the prospect is fair for a third crop.

Publication of Summons.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE State of Nevada, in and for the county of Washoe. The State of Nevada sends to D. S. Hickman, greeting: You are hereby required to appear in an action commenced against you as defendant by Nona S. Hickman as plaintiff, in the District Court of the State of Nevada, in and for the county of Washoe, and answer the complaint therein within ten days after the service on you of this summons (exclusive of the day of service), if served in said county, or twenty days if served out of said county, but within said district, and in all other cases forty days, or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint. The said action is brought to recover against you a judgment and decree of divorce on the complaint of the plaintiff herein, in which complaint she alleges that you and her were united in marriage at Reno, in the county of Washoe, State of Nevada, January 27, 1888; that you and plaintiff have not lived or cohabitated as husband and wife since about August 30, 1888; that you have not at any time since said marriage contributed to her support; that you went away from Reno, aforesaid, about the first of November, 1888, that you abandoned plaintiff about August 30th, aforesaid, and have not since said August 30th recognized her as your wife; that she charges against you abandonment and failure to support her and failure to provide for her the common necessaries of life for more than one year preceding her complaint made and filed, which failure to support and provide for her is not a result of poverty that could not have been avoided by you by ordinary industry. She claims against you the custody of your minor child, on the ground that you are incompetent to care for him or to have dominion over him, all of which will more fully appear from the complaint which is on file in the office of the Clerk of said Court at Reno, in said county, and to which you are especially referred.

And you are further notified, that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint, the said plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded and for costs of suit.

In testimony whereof, I, William Webster, have hereunto set my hand this 21st day of January, A. D. 1890.

WILLIAM WEBSTER,
Attorney for Plaintiff.

THE MAIDEN AND THE FISH.

"There are fish in the sea quite as good," said the maid,
As any that ever were caught,
And plentiful, too; and so greedy of bait,
That they reck not with what it is fraught."

So saying she dandled her rod as she sat
In the shade by the side of the brook,
And smilingly mused, as she drew forth her line
And craftily baited her hook,

And gazed at the fishes that thronged at her feet,
In the water there sporting in glee,
As if pleased to be drawn by a hand fair as hers
From their home in the far-away sea.

Thus time glided on, and the maid and the fish
Passed their days in a pleasant routine,
For the maid was amused by the fishes so fond,
And the fish deemed the maiden their queen.

Yet dallied the maiden with seeming delight,
And laughed—as she dangled the bait
Just a little too high for the fishes to reach—
At their many vain efforts to bite.

But after awhile with this trifling maid
The fish grew impatient and said:
"There may be other fish, but—there's other good bait,"
And away they all hurriedly sped.

Now pondered the maiden awhile with regret
O'er the change which she saw in her fate.
Then called to the vanishing fishes: "Come back,"
But the fish only answered: "Too late."

Then "Alas!" sighed the maid, "there are fish in the sea;
But in sorrow this lesson I'm taught—
That however so good they may be, there are times
When a fish will refuse to be caught."

—Washington Post.

JARED PERKINS' RELIC.

Josiah Allen's Wife Gives Her Some Sound Advice.

One of the relations on my own side came here a visitin' week before last. She that was Arvilly Smith, or as she calls herself now, "the relic of Jared Perkins."

She staid twelve days and thirteen nights.

She had her young child with her—Lucilla Augusta Perkins.

And if Arvilly said "Lucilla Augusta, don't," if she said that once durin' them twelve days and thirteen nights, she said it five hundred times. And I haint a settin' it too high.

Why, good land! I have sometimes thought I had seen a mouse-hole watched close by a cat. But no place of any description was ever watched as that mother watched that child.

If Lucilla bit a apple on one side, it was:

"Lucilla, don't! Don't bite it in so far, you'll break off your teeth."

If she drinked a glass of water, it was: "Lucilla, don't swaller such big mou'fuls of water, you'll fill your little throat too full."

Or, "Lucilla, swaller faster, or the water will run all over your little chin."

If she sat down by the fire, it was:

"Lucilla Augusta, don't sit so near the fire, or you'll burn your little face!"

And if she sat away from it, it was:

"Lucilla, don't set away from the fire so far, you'll chill your little veins."

And so it went on. If she talked with me and Josiah, it was:

"Don't talk so much, Lucilla, you'll wear out Cousin Josiah and Cousin Samantha"

Or, if she didn't talk, it was:

"Don't keep so still, Lucilla Augusta, or Cousin Samantha and Cousin Josiah will think you have lost your little tongue."

And so Arvilly kep' on—a deep, anxious expression a-plowing into her face from day to day; and little Lucilla not dastin' to speak a word, or move a move, without lookin' to her mother. Why, I got so wore out with it that one day I up and told Arvilly what I thought on't. I argied (and it was from a deep sense of duty that I did it)—I argied that it spilt a disposition by keeping it riled up all the time; it learnt her to be dependent on somebody else always. She didn't know what to do, bein' told so many different things to once; and, finally, I brung up a deep simely I had heard Mother Smith use, and says I: "As it has been said, and well said: 'Watch pot never biles,' which I 'spose means, if you watch a kettle too clost, and keep a movin' it back and forth, and pokin' at the coals under it, it won't bile. There is such a thing as a wise supervision, a overlookin', that don't annoy or disturb, sort o' distant, and near, too, like the warm watchfulness of the sunlight a bendin' over us on summer days, soothin' and comfortin', and yet guidin' and lightin' our pathways. But this constant and open tagging after a child, or, as the poet would say: 'This taggin' and naggin' is enough to ruin any child whatsomever. It jest takes away any frankness and independence of character they may have set out with.'"

"Oh, that is what I want to do! I want Lucilla Augusta to lean onto me always. I don't want her ever to move off independent of me."

And then I says to Arvilly, with a sort of a deep look onto her: "You'll have to in the end!" And then I kinder looked right through Arvilly onto great things, eternal truths and consequences, and says I:

"No human soul can be helped only jest so fur. Lonely they come into this world, lonely they'll go out of it. And all along through life the lonesome soul, though surrounded by watchfulest relatives and friends, yet in a certain sense it has got to live alone, dwell by itself in the deep places where no eye can foller it, no ear hear what it says—no one but the One who made that soul, made the deep places into which it hides itself

"Now, that independent individual life has its rights. It must have 'em; it is a separate bein'—mothers don't want to think so, but it is. A mother may want to take the hull child, clothes and all, and put it right in the middle of her own heart; but she can't; her heart hain't big enough. Or she may want to get right outside of her child's heart, and fill it full, so full that nothin' else can get in, and she weighin' as she does over a hundred; but she can't; she is too big.

"The best love, the truest and the tenderest, has to kinder hang round on the outside; it can't get inside of the beloved heart and soul, it can't! It is a lonesome feelin' to contemplate it, but it is true. And so what remains for anybody to do is only to admit the fact. Own up that the little soul haint a part of our own life, but has a separate existence of its own—with its own duties, its own pleasures, and cares and rights. It has a right to its own little thoughts, its own little ways, and the best we can do for a child is to teach it to stand alone, and stand straight.

"No matter how much we love to have it lean on us, and O, how passin' sweet it is to have the little fingers cling to us, and the dear little form lean on us; but we must put self back on us; we must stand in front of ourself, as it were, and do right, and learn the little creeter to walk upright without our help, and once in awhile we must let go of the little dimpled hands, a leavin' 'em free to grasp holt of life for themselves.

"A tough lesson for mothers to learn, one of the toughest and hardest sums that are ever set for one on the slate of life set for 'em to work out.

"And what makes the sum more curious and difficult is that you can't seem to get no answer to it. You may add and subtract, and use up every rule in the old 'rithmetic on it, but you don't seem to get no sure result, no certainty, that the answer will be a happifying and sure one.

"But you have got to set there and figger away all the same—got to work it out the best way you can! The sum is set down in front of you, and you have got to do it—or try to, anyway.

"Good land! talk about educatin' a child! Why, if the mother is a true woman and mother, the child educates her more'n she educates the child, enough sight.

"She learns a divine patience through bearin' with the childish little faults.

"Through fear of settin' a bad example in front of it, she learns to control her own temper and her tongue, and behaves herself more'n a good deal of the time.

"She learns a heroic courage from her love for the child that will combat all danger—smile at Satan's rage, and face a frownin' world

"She mounts up into the topmost height of self-abnegation and martyrdom (as I have said more previously) when she learns it to get along without her—like an old bird pushin' her young one out of the warm nest so it may learn to fly.

"O! how that old bird would love to keep it in the warm nest—how her love wants to brood over it always—how she yearns to keep it close to her own jealous, beating heart—how doubly lonesome the old nest is when the little one is gone; how happily sad, and how joyously mournful is the thought that it is a-learnin' to fly alone—that it is a-learnin' to be happy away from her, away from the old nest—that the walls of the old home can never again be the bound of its joy and content.

"No, the wide horizon has now dawned upon it, the clear, far fields of ether, and it must soar and sing, and sing its own songs, build its own nest, live its own life in its own world."

(This was an allegory.)

An' I talked in this way to Arvilly from hour to hour, and from day to day, and episoded some.

But I don't know as it done much good. Sometimes I am afraid it didn't.

You can't give advice three times a day in a little sweetened water like boneset tea or squills. No, you have to sort o' hang round and administer it the best you can, and when you can, and where you can. And then you haint sure it is swallowed.

I felt consider'ble deprested when they drove off, Josiah a-takin' 'em to the train the day they left.

For I heard Arvilly say, as she sat by the side of Josiah Allen in the democrat, and a gray parmetty dress, I heard her say:

"Lucilla Augusta, don't set down on your little new gown or you will muss it all up."

And a minute arter, just as they turned round the corner into the road:

"Don't stand up, Lucilla Augusta, in the wagon or you will break off your little ankles."

I felt deprested about it, and couldn't help it.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

THE WELL-BRED GIRL.

What She Is Like and How She May Be Readily Distinguished.

Do you know many well-bred girls? asks the Philadelphia Times. Oh, they can always be told.

A well-bred girl thanks the man who gives her a seat in the street-car, and does it in a quiet and not in an effuse way.

She doesn't turn round to look after gamblers or posing actors on the street, and she doesn't think that her good looks are causing the men to stare at her.

She doesn't wear all her jewelry in the day-time, and she understands that diamond rings, ear-rings and bracelets were intended for the evening alone.

She doesn't go to supper after the theater is over alone with a man.

She does not declare that she never rides in street cars.

She does not accept a valuable present from any man unless she expects to marry him.

She doesn't talk loud in public places

She does not speak of her mother in a sarcastic way, and she shows her the loving deference that is her due.

She doesn't want to be a man and she doesn't try to imitate him by wearing stiff hats, smoking cigaretts, and using an occasional big, big D.

She doesn't say she hates women, and she has some good, true friends among them.

She doesn't wear boots without their buttons or a frock that needs mending.

She doesn't scorn the use of the needle, and expects some day to make clothes for very little people who will be very dear to her.

That's the well-bred girl; she's the sort that you want for your wife, and the one who will not want to be an actress, but who will be faithful through sickness and through health, through sorrow and, if need be, through shame; who will never waver in her love, and in whom the heart of her husband may safely trust.

How She Was Dressed.

"The bride wore an appropriate and becoming dress of gray grow grain silk, and a fishoo of white Vallention's lace, with long vail of white tool," was the description a rural editor gave of the bride's appearance at a wedding. The bride herself gave him the description, and he took it down by the sound, and as he was his own compositor it was published just as he wrote it.

HOME HINTS AND HELPS.

—No mother with young children should be willing to be without mutton suet, one of the most efficacious of simple remedies.

—Table linen should always be hemmed by hand. Not only does it look more dainty, but there is never a streak of dirt under the edge after being laundried as with machine sewing.—Table Talk.

—Often there will be cracks and openings along the base-boards of the room. Be sure to have these closed. Paste strips of cloth over all cracks in the plaster, and cover with paper like that on the walls.

—Mush Pudding.—Take four eggs, one cup cold mush, one large tablespoon of butter, two-thirds of a cup of sugar. Stir well together; add one pint of sweet milk to the mixture, pour into a deep pan, grate nutmeg on top and bake till the custard becomes firm.

—Indian Cakes.—Two cupfuls of Indian meal, a teaspoonful of salt, one egg; scald the meal, and when cool add the egg well beaten and the salt; make into very flat cakes, and fry in boiling lard. Very nice with roast pork or served with sirup.

—Every housewife far from a physician or drug store should keep on hand a stock of simple domestic remedies, suitable for the ordinary little ailments and accidents that are apt to befall children. She should not wait till the emergency arises, but should prepare her store of remedies beforehand, setting aside a special closet or shelf in a closet as a receptacle for them.—Household.

—Veal Sausage.—To three-quarters of a pound of veal cutlet take one-quarter of a pound of salt fat pork. Chop them together, season with fresh thyme, crumbled sage, a little salt and black pepper. Put it in a broad, shallow pan, with a cloth or plate over it, heat it gradually, and, as the juice begins to run from the meat, shake the pan about, cook very slowly, keeping it covered all the time. When nearly finished add a piece of butter for browning.

—A hostess should think twice before she invites people. She should be so generous as to let her friends alone unless she wishes to treat them well. Then, having made up her mind to invite them, she must remember that, from that moment, she is their slave. She is to be all attention and all suavity. If she has nothing to offer them but a cup of tea she must make it a "beaker full of the warm south" by her manner. In the smallest house, the humblest surroundings, the hostess is queen, and she must be gracious. If she is not, she is a snob, a vulgarian and a poor creature, no matter if her husband is a millionaire, a President or a great scholar.—Ladies' Home Journal.

NINETY-EIGHT PENNIES.

The Queerest Fee Ever Accepted by a Noted New York Lawyer.

"The queerest fee I ever heard of," said a member of the bar, "and a fee that shows the soft side of a lawyer, was the one given all in pennies, newsboys' pennies to boot, to ex-Judge Curtiss, or taken by him, rather, when [illegible] to Pittsburgh to defend his friend [illegible] iam N. Riddle from the charge of mismanagement of the funds of Riddle's bank. It was just ninety-eight cents, that fee was, and those ninety-eight pennies were gotten together in this way: Mr. Riddle, who is now a prosperous broker here, was in his Pittsburgh days one of the wealthiest and most liberal men in that town. Every Christmas he gave the newsboys a dinner which cost him a thousand or two. The boys all loved him; they all called him 'Billy,' as indeed half the people in Pittsburgh seemed to do. When the news came out in an afternoon paper one day that there was trouble in Riddle's bank—it was another official there, a man high up in politics and society, who ruined it—the newsboys began to realize that perhaps there friend 'Billy' was in trouble, too. They knew that money cures many things, and after a moment's consultation half a dozen of them took up a collection. A spokesman was appointed. He hurried into the bank, handed a tiny brown paper parcel to Mr. Riddle with the simple words: 'Here, Billy!' and was gone. That brown paper contained the ninety-eight cents. Riddle wouldn't have taken thousands for them. Afterward, when he was tried and acquitted through ex-Judge Curtiss' most eloquent presentation of the facts, the judge wouldn't take any fee from his old friend except that tiny brown parcel."—N. Y. Herald.

Power of the Devil-Fish.

A few days ago at the end of the Naples wharf a forty-foot pile of about one foot diameter was loosely tied with one hundred feet of cable. The hands suddenly noticed the cable running from the coil, and before any one could secure it both pile and cable were moving rapidly to sea. A devil-fish had got entangled in the cable. Boats were at once secured and started in pursuit, and after a two-mile race they captured the line and log, the monster having become loosened, which fact accounts for them being able to overtake it. When we consider that this species of ray attains a weight of 3,000 to 5,000 pounds, with strength to correspond, this is not astonishing. Some months ago the passengers of the steamer Fearless harpooned one of these fish near San Carlos bay, and, after towing the steamer for some time, the engine being reversed and pulling against him, they were compelled to cut the line to prevent being carried on the Sannibel bar.—Fort Meyers Press.

How She Counts Her Children.

A Philadelphia woman who attended a reception given to George Macdonald, the English novelist, when in this country, tells of a queer fad indulged in by the author's wife. The latter wore, wherever she went, a belt from which dangled what appeared to be a number of golden balls. During a conversation with the novelist the Philadelphian happened to ask how many children he had.

"One the wrong side of twelve," was his answer.

"I suppose you mean thirteen?"

"No, madam; I have only eleven.

Then Mr. Macdonald called his wife, who opened the golden balls (which proved to be lockets) and showed the photographs of all her children.
